Researchers have been using Copac to discover research material for more than 20 years.

We’ve taken a fresh look at it and the result is a new service that we’ve called library hub discover, which replaces Copac from 31 July.

Try it and you’ll see it’s growing fast to include many more UK universities than Copac. Soon, it will give you access to 100+ UK and Irish academic, national and special library collections, including rare and unique materials as well as open access content.

If you’ve used Copac before you’ll find the functionality is familiar, and there are already some new features (with more to follow over the coming months).

Give it a try: discover.libraryhub.jisc.ac.uk
Tell us what you think, so we can plan future developments that give you what you need: help@jisc.ac.uk